preciable stain, being merely a judicial accident.

The Hadical La Justice, M. Clementeas Paper, regards the judgment passed upon M. Ferdinand de Lesseps as severe. As to the other sentences, La Justice points out that the other contractors were exactly in the same position with M. Elifel, and the Official Liquidator of the Panama Canal Company ought to proceed against them ail for the recovery of the sums they unlawfully claimed and appropriated.

M. Drumont writes to La Libre Parole, the Extremist organ, which was largely instrumental in making a prosecution of the Panama directors inevitable, that in face of the severe sentences there is only room for one feeling, mamely, pity.

His Conviction of the Murder of Bob Lyons Is Affirmed.

Court of Appeals Decision in His Case Handed Down To-Day.

Michael Sliney must die for killing Butcher Bob Lyons Thanksgiving Eve. 1891. The Court of Appeals decides so, after a careful review of the issues ruised by Silney's counsel. The decision was handed own to-day Michael T. Stiney was Judge Ingraham, in the Cherry street, in which Hob carried on a meat market businers. There had never been any quarrel between these friends.

The afternoon of Nov. 25, 1891, Mrs. Lyons, Bob's mother, entered the marketket from her parlor in the rear, and found her son Bob bleeding to death on the floor from a gaping wound in the back of his neck, which had broken the vertibrae, and his own clever lying on the floor dripping with his own blood. He replied to his mother's question:

"Mickey did it," and died.

Slincy came in, full of smypathy and been at work on the docks, and when he was arrested, it seemed a cruel formality, in spite of Bob Lyons's dying words.

estate was divided, if he would keep still.

Jim Lyons was arrested, and color of truth seemed to be given to Sliney's story by the discovery that there were two parties in the Lyons family; that Hob was his father's favorite, while Jim was his mother's pet, and that there had been blokerings. Boh, it was said, had excluded Jim from any share in the market. The old man was decrepit. If Bob were out of the way it would not be long before the old man's $49,000 would fall to Jim.

Fortunately for Jim Lyons, cullty Sliney couldn't keep his tongue still, and in March he "confessed" again, saying that be and Bob quarrelled over a bill whie Sliney had tried to collect and
